Northrop Grumman Promotes Bill Docalovich to Director of Trades Services

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. – Nov. 28, 2006 – Northrop Grumman Corporation’s (NYSE: NOC) Newport News sector has promoted Bill Docalovich to director of trades services. In his new position, he will be responsible for providing technical and business services to the various trades across the sector. He reports to Danny Hunley, vice president of trades, education and training at Northrop Grumman Newport News.

“Bill is a strong leader who brings years of experience to this position,” said Hunley. “His expertise in quality, training, human resources and trades management makes him an integral part of our team.”

Prior to this appointment, Docalovich served as manager of waterfront services. He began working at Newport News in 1989 as a program administrator and has held a variety of positions of increasing responsibility in the areas of quality, training, human resources and trades management.

Docalovich earned a bachelor’s degree in psychology from Hofstra University and a master’s degree in psychology from Old Dominion University. He currently resides in Norfolk, Va.

Northrop Grumman Corporation is a $30 billion global defense and technology company whose 120,000 employees provide innovative systems, products, and solutions in information and services, electronics, aerospace and shipbuilding to government and commercial customers worldwide.
